

The annual Three Springs Australia Day celebrations were held at the Three Springs Aquatic Centre, where around 100 people gathered to Reflect, Respect, Celebrate the day. Hosted by the Shire of Three Springs, attendees enjoyed the traditional BBQ breakfast prepared by Shire Councillors, staff and volunteers.

Formalities commenced with Shire CEO Keith Woodward welcoming everyone, and invited local indigenous woman Elaine Walley to give a Welcome to Country. Elaine acknowledged the grief that indigenous Australians still feel, but also shared hope about the future.

After thanking Elaine for her words, Shire President Chris Lane acknowledged the National Australia Day Council and Auspire in their work to rebrand the day, and enable the community to enjoy a COVID Safe event. She then invited Ian Comben from DFES to present local Bush Fire Brigade volunteers with their long service medals. These medals ranged from 5 years service up to 30 years. It was a proud moment for the community to recognise these local heroes, who give their time to protect us.

Cr Lane also thanked other volunteer groups who work to make the Three Springs community a great place to live. It was then time for the presentation Community Citizen of the Year Awards.

North Midlands Police Charity Golf Day took out the Active Citizenship Award for local group or event. The annual event has raised over $100,000 for St John Ambulance since its inception in 1998. The award was accepted by local WAPOL members Rich and Stu.

Senior Community Citizen of the Year was given to Ray Morgan, who has been involved in the community for many years. He has worked with the RSL to connect with students and community regarding the importance of remembering and honouring our service personnel. Ray was unable to accept the award, however his son Craig accepted it on his behalf.

Community Citizen of the Year went to Terrie Young, for her work across a variety of community groups and worthy causes. She volunteers for a number of local groups, and is always ready to assist with her time. She has made a positive impact on our town since she has been here.

The next ceremony was a Citizenship Ceremony conducted by Cr Lane. Stuart Irwin took his Pledge of Allegiance in front of family and friends, and also had the honour of cutting the lamington cake.

The National Anthem was the finale of the formalities, with Cr Lane explaining that the Anthem has changed, making it more inclusive and recognising our Indigenous history and communities. The change of a single word will make a major impact to our Australian citizens.

People then had free access to the Aquatic Centre for the rest of the day, with the children enjoying the inflatable obstacle course and toys.

Shire of Three Springs Arrowsmith Fire 6th-8th January 2021.

The Shire of Three Springs would like to thank the 60 plus bush fire volunteers so much for the immeasurably valuable work you have done for our community!

2021 Three Springs Community Citizen Award Winner

On Tuesday, when my name was called to receive the 2021 Three Springs Community Citizen Award, I was shocked, believing one of the community groups I belong to had been nominated for an award. Therefore, I was unprepared, with teary eyes and shaking legs. This is what I should have said.

Firstly, a big thank you to whoever kindly nominated me. I am only one of many volunteers who just pitch in when they see fabulous people with great ideas for the adults and children of the town. It's hard not to help whenever you can, and the reward is the satisfaction you gain from the delights of the people whose lives have been enriched in some small way. I would also like to thank the various groups for welcoming me and offering me the opportunity to help out in my small capacity. There are many others who would be as, or more deserving, of this recognition.

I use this opportunity to recommend volunteering, whatever your age, whatever your interests. It's not just the sometimes undermanned community groups, or the community itself, that will benefit. You will make friends, you will find new interests, and you will achieve a deep sense of satisfaction from a successful collaboration.

Terrie Young

Thank you for the opportunity to be involved in your community. Volunteering is easy when you enjoy it.

Conversation is key to future renting

The clock is ticking on WA's renting moratorium, which will see the ban on rent increases and some evictions being lifted when the COVID-19 coronavirus pandemic emergency laws expire on 28 March 2021.

Consumer Protection is encouraging landlords and tenants to start a conversation now about what happens to their rental arrangements when the ordinary tenancy laws kick-in again after this date.

To help, Consumer Protection has developed a negotiating guide in consultation and collaboration with key industry stakeholders, including the Real Estate Industry of Western Australia (REIWA).

The 'Future renting WA negotiating guide' covers the many scenarios that could play out and examines the risks, benefits, considerations and pathways forward.

For example, should a landlord wish to keep the existing tenant, we advise they consider negotiating a rent increase that's suitable and reasonable, while urging the tenant to only agree to pay what rent they can afford, and to think about how long they wish the rental term to be.

When discussing rent increases, it's smart for tenants and landlords to investigate how much other properties in the area are being leased for, and to not solely rely on media reports for an indication of how their local market is performing.

The guide also examines the pros and cons of other situations, including if the landlord wishes to lease to a new tenant, should they want to move back into the property and if they want to sell.

Meanwhile, tenants are given information about what they should consider if they want to end the tenancy and move elsewhere.

Whichever position landlords and tenants are in, we believe that by negotiating now, they will be better prepared and have time to make plans for a safe and secure renting future.

For more details visit www.dmirs.wa.gov.au/covidrenting

A guide to granny flats

Creating 'one big happy family' might be the dream when it comes to multigenerational living, but in reality there's a lot to weigh-up before entering into a granny flat arrangement.

If you're wondering where you'll spend your twilight years, a granny flat interest in your adult child's home might seem like a win-win – you can downsize to a smaller property, while being on-hand to provide and receive support from your family.

But even when families do get along well, living together can create new issues and challenges. When working out what is right for you, it is important to think long-term and to remember that this will be your 'home for life', so all the pieces need to fit.

With that in mind, Consumer Protection's free and independent service, the Seniors Housing Advisory Centre (SHAC), has created a new guide about granny flats that's aimed at helping seniors decide whether this type of arrangement would be suitable for them.

The 'Moving in with your family' guide examines the things seniors and their families should consider before taking that step, including the importance of having 'hard chats' about worst-case scenarios and working out upfront how expenses would be divided.

It's vital that seniors protect their interests, so the guide recommends seeking expert independent legal and financial advice, and points to some useful resources that may assist along the way.

Once a decision is made to co-habit, the publication examines the next steps that should occur, including formalising the arrangement with a lawyer and examples of what should be put into writing. It also points to the importance of having ongoing regular discussions about finances, responsibilities and 'what if' scenarios.

Given there are so many important points to consider, a handy check-list has been included to cover many aspects of what to consider about your day-to-day living arrangements will look like and what happens if things change in the future.

The guide can be found online at www.commerce.wa.gov.au/publications/moving-your-family-multigenerational-living-and-granny-flat-arrangements or call SHAC on 1300 367 057 to receive a hard-copy.

Magellanic Clouds | Summer & Autumn

Travelling in country WA gives you an excellent opportunity to see something not normally visible under bright city lights.

The Large and Small Magellanic Clouds (sometimes abbreviated to LMC and SMC!) are galaxies outside of our own Milky Way Galaxy. From Earth, they look like two faint clouds in the southern night sky, one larger than the other, and form a splendid spectacle. They are only seen from the Southern Hemisphere.

The best time to see the Magellanic Clouds is when there's no moonlight.

When to look: Here are our top picks for early evening times to see the Magellanic Clouds in 2021!

- From 8.30pm, between 6th-15th January
- From 8pm, between 5th-14th February
- From 7.30pm, between 6th-17th March
- From 7pm, between 4th-15th April
- From 8pm, between 29th October-7th November
- From 8.30pm, between 27th November-6th December

Which direction to look: South. Look for two very bright stars (Canopus and Achernar). The Magellanic Clouds appear roughly between these two stars and will look like small fuzzy clouds.

For Telescopes and Binoculars

There's a lot to see in the Small and Large Magellanic Clouds. Binoculars will bring these two satellite galaxies to life. If you have a telescope, try to find 47 Tucanae or 47 Tuc for short. Its catalogue number is NGC 104. 47 Tuc is a globular cluster of up to half a million stars and is 15,000 light years from Earth. So even though it looks like it could be part of the Small Magellanic Cloud, it's not. Check out this NASA image...

Something Interesting

The Milky Way is part of a group of galaxies that are all linked together by the pull of gravity, called the Local Group. There are about 54 galaxies in our Local Group. These are mostly dwarf galaxies clustered around the 3 largest of Milky Way, Andromeda and Triangulum.

The Magellanic Clouds are two of our closest galactic neighbours in the Local Group.

The Large Magellanic Cloud is about 160,000 light years from Earth and the Small Magellanic cloud is a bit further at 200,000 light years away. That's very close, astronomically speaking!

They are both classified as irregular galaxies. Our bigger Milky Way is exerting gravitational forces that are slowly pulling them out of shape.

These galaxies were named after the Portuguese sailor Ferdinand Magellan who completed the first circumnavigation of the Earth from 1519 to 1522, using the 'clouds at night' to voyage into the southern seas.

AGRICULTURE AND TRANSPORT INDUSTRY VEHICLE LICENSING REFORM

I am calling for a review of vehicle licensing fees applied to the agriculture and transport industry. Currently, a farm business is only entitled to one concessional heavy vehicle registration per occupied residence on separate properties, with an allowance of one trailer per prime mover.

Many of these vehicles spend 90% of their life on the farm and only cross a road from one paddock to another. These vehicles also include quad bikes, tractors, harvesters, motor bikes, UTVs and fire trucks. The fire trucks are only used for a small portion of the year and they potentially save the need for many other volunteer and state services attending if a flare up is caught in time during harvesting. The same applies to the transport industry in relation to trailers, where many of them sit parked up in compound, as there are only so many prime movers that can tow them and the demand fluctuates during the year.

I am fighting for reform to this licensing fee structure so it is fairer for the industries that are of significant economic importance to this state and the country.

Ends.
